

Geoffrey Stewart is a Machine Learning Engineer at Oracle with a Masters Degree in Computer Science - Artificial Intelligence concentration. His thesis was the contribution of a HDBSCAN clustering implementation to tribuo.org, the open-source machine learning library for Java. The paper was published in the Applied Sciences journal. His current areas of research interest are: clustering algorithms, large language models (for code), computer vision, and machine learning problems in general.